

Roger Lilly: Production Equals Paychecks

By Associated Press

Thursday, March 5, 2009

Two West Virginia high-tech companies are collaborating to improve innovations in biometrics.

Global Science & Technology of Fairmont and Morgantown's Biometric Services International are creating a joint venture - IdM Global Alliance LLC.

BSI is a subsidiary of the National Biometric Security Project and runs the world's only accredited facility dedicated to biometrics testing and research.

Global Science helped design, develop and test a satellite-data collection system for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. General Manager Brian Bell says it brings software development, engineering and database management experience to the table.

Copyright 2008 Associated Press. All rights reserved.